

The Global TV Deck

TV drives business outcomes

April 2021

“Advertisers choose TV for the most important role in their marketing plans, that of ‘lead outcomes-driver’. To best achieve the full range of business results - from quickly activating customer traffic at scale to securing brand loyalty beyond reason, whatever is most mission-critical to sales goals and brand goals should be trusted to TV.”

--- Sean Cunningham, President of The Global TV Group and CEO & President of the VAB

“Globally we have different customers with different objectives: Sales, activation, aiming for short or long-term results etc.. The wonderful result of our joint research expertise is that TV meets all these goals – everywhere.”

--- Martin Krapf, Vice-President of The Global TV Group and Non-Executive Board Member of Screenforce Germany

“There’s an increasing culture of effectiveness in marketing. Outcomes are in. So, this new deck is timely. It shows repeatedly, forensically and comprehensively TV advertising’s incredible skillset. It demonstrates how TV solves business problems and is packed with the evidence marketers need to prove that TV is a low-risk investment that unlocks growth.”

--- Lindsey Clay, Past President of The Global TV Group and CEO of Thinkbox

TV creates sales uplifts for brands even at low investment levels

Executive summary/key results

There are three main triggers that signal an advertiser is ready to move into TV: diminishing returns, scaling up, build brand/brand awareness

Scale is the biggest driver of effectiveness

Advertising has both a short-term and a sustained effect on sales

The point of diminishing returns needs to be identified

Strategies that harness the benefits of TV but at lower cost can work well as a starting point

Advertisers should start TV with a shorter, high impact burst strategy rather than a smaller, continuous drip approach

TV creates sales uplifts for brands even at low investment levels

Smaller brands see the biggest uplifts in sales when using TV campaigns

TV has a stronger proportional effect for smaller brands – showing the power of TV to help build the brand. This is because small brands are working from a lower base and TV gets advertisers seen, heard and talked about quickly

TV performs better than any pure 'demand-generating' channel (both in short- and long-term)

Executive summary/key results

58% of advertising's profit return is overlooked when ignoring the long term

Some forms of advertising are riskier than others

Most advertising channels boost the efficiency of others, but the scale and consistency of the effect differs significantly

Marketing budgets tend to be used to do two things: demand generation and demand fulfilment

Investing in advertising during the recession, is ultimately worth the long-term profit

Executive summary/key results

“Going dark”
(ie. stopping advertising)
during an economic crisis is very risky and it can take up to five years for brands to recover

A recession is no time to switch solely to short-term sales activation, because brand-building is what is going to see brands through recovery

Brands, who continue investing in advertising during a crisis, may be able to increase their SoV and SoM for cheaper, since the prices of advertising are lower in recession

Brands who saw the crisis as an opportunity (with over 8% ESoV), saw over 2.5 times as many large business effects and 4.5 times the annual market share in times of recovery. Opportunists experienced strong profitability growth in recovery

Successful advertisers ensure their campaigns strike the right balance between long-term and short-term investments

Executive summary/key results

There is a tendency to use very short-term online metrics as primary performance measures and this has dangerous implications for long-term success

Long-term (3+ years) investment in advertising delivers double the profit of a short-term approach (less than 1 year), but investing in both delivers even higher returns

Brands which target the whole market achieve 3 times as many large business effects than those that focus on existing customers

TV advertising remains the most effective way to build a brand and creates larger business effects than other forms of advertising

Advertisers need to ensure their campaigns strike the right balance between long-term investment in brand-building and short-term, direct methods that stimulate sales (60:40 principle)
